RISING ON A RIVER STEAMER. Mr. Mowat, H.B.M.'s Acting Consul General at Shanghai, received the following telegram from H.H.M.'s Cousul at Hankow on the 17th inst. :-"River steamers in danger from ruffian passengers; companies should take precautionary measures." On receipt of this telegram, Mr. Mowat communicated it to the agents of the various British steamers.

As corroboration of this, news reached Shangbai the same day that an emeute had occurred on board the steamer Tatung on her trip up river, apparently between Wuhu and Tatung, and that the chief officer, Mr. Jago, and the Chinese pilot had been badly knocked about According to the Daily News account, a pas-206.301.06 senger had been robbed and made a row, and 5,000.00 the head of the gang of thieves assaulted the 104,128.82 | Chinese pilot. A LITTLE ALAR W AT CHINKIANG. CHINKIANG, 16th September. Some Manchu soldiers stationed at one of the camps outside of the city-committed some breach of discipline a few days ago, and have been since confined in the city, while awaiting their removal. About 10 p.m. last night while the officials were removing some fifteen of the prisoners to the Chinese man of war Fa An, a large growd of Natives assembled in the Concession and on the Bund to witness the departure of the prisoners The officials fearing an attempt would be made to resoue them, a large body of soldiers were sent for to preserve order, and during the time great excitement prevailed. The prisoners I hear, will leave to day for Nanking. An armed guard was landed from H.B.M.'s man-of-war Redpole, but hannily its services were not required. A detachment of blue-jackets and marines landed from the Redpole this morning, and were out through a course of exercises in the compound of Mosses. Butterfield and Swire.—Mercury correspondent.

But however thorough. They are quite prepared to employ every artifice of craft and dissimulation known to oriental diplomacy to hold the foreigners at bay, but they are well aware by this time that they cannot be dealt with by employing open force for their expulsion. It is not impossible, however, that, in view of the existing troubles in China, arising out of the anti-foreign riots, some understanding may have been arrived at Cronstadt for concerted action in the event of the Peking Government proving recalcitrant in the negotiations for redress of the wrongs due to the various Missions in Central China. A further telegram in a Queensland paper in reference to this alleged agreement between France and Russia says that it refers only to China, and provides that in the event of any trouble arising in Chinaeach Power shall place its coaling stations a the service of the other, and mass its troo on the respective frontier occupied such Power. The Chinese Government know how to appreciate the danger on the Manchurian border, however lightly they may regard the menace from Tonkin, for its reality has served to bring about among the mandarius a reluctant toleration of much detested railway as a necessary -arm of defence against the dreaded ac vauce of the Russian. The fear of the Russian is in their hearts, however cheaply they may esteem the French; hence this new [alliance may possibly not be without effect in Peking. The negotiations now proceeding at Peking in reference to the re- Chang Chin-rung, it will be decades and the hands of the Foreign Ministers be considerably strengthened if there is really this accord between France and Russia, more especially if they both agree to act in thorough concert with England. These three Powers can, if united, dictate their own terms to China, and England and France are the two Powers who have suffered most from the outbreaks in the Yangtsze Valley. The United States also has claims, and will be sure to follow the British lead, both by interest and through sympathy. Germany will no doubt endorse the policy of the British Minister, and Italy we know to be fully prepared to support British demands. It only remains therefore for England, France, and Russia to stand firm in their ultimatum and China must yield whatever is required. The Tsung-li Yamen will doubtless exhaust their ingenuity to prolong the negotiations in the hope that fresh circumstances may arise to weaken the coalition of the Treaty Powers or to stacken their interest in the questions at issue. They are a tute enough to know that a new European complication would suffice to divert attention from the Far East, and render the Powers concerned willing to settle matters on much easier terms. It is sincerely to be hoped, therefore, that the Foreign Ministers at Peking will resolutely refuse to be beguited into the mazes of argument the Chinese invari-The messionaries are not likely to prove stuck to it, being generally taken them to secure a mitigation of the sentence in bys-laws. The Mercury says that the chief officer of the barque Sea Sicallow and a considerably rough time of it when making for Steep Island to communicate, with the light-house keeper. Itwas only with great trouble that he succeeded in jumping ashore, after geveral unsuccessful trials; but it was much worse to embark again. When he got between the sampan and the rocks. while attempting to leap on board he was badly bruised and manled about, but was picked up. happily without being seriously hurt. He was ibout 24 hours after that occurrence in the fishing boat, trying to fetch the French Mail Packet and the German steamer Ashington, but failed; until at last he fell in with the Almine Seud an was taken bok to Chinsau Island. The Ingo returned to Shanghai the other day owing to the breakage of one of her piston rods and cylinder cover. The accident, we learn from the Daily News, happened when the steamer was about 100 miles beyond the Saddles. After auchoring for a time, to clear away the broken machinery, she returned to Shangbai working

Our Shanghai morning contemporary writes:-Mr. Mowat the Acting Chief Justice and Consul-General, will leave Shanghai on the 3rd proximo to take up the duties of Judge at Yokohama. relieving Mr. N. J. Every Foreigner in China (says the Mercuru) will admire the courage of one of the French sisters at Ichang, who, when the nune were escaping to the riverside, saized a bumbon from the hands of one of the ruffling in the crowd, and with it cleared a passage for herself and the other sisters, the cowardly scounitels elearing tway like cars from the rade weapon wielded by the placky girl.

We are glad to learn (says the Mercury) that the eargo of the barque Sea Swallow has received no damage through the vessel being dismasted in the recent typhoon. She is a Sunderlandbuilt ship of oak wood. The masts were out off about 6 or 7 feet above deak (a few feat above the fife rail) and the work was accomplished in such a seamanlike manner that, the resolution once taken, the wreckers was clear of the ship within about half an hour afterwards. A telegram from Hankow on the 12th inst says :- " The steamer Ella has been chartered here on behalf of the British Government to procoed to Ichang, taking man and arms from our Chinese contemporary, the Hu-pao, the other day is creating no little sensation among the Native population of Shanghai. The article in question, anticipating with commendable foregight the declaration of war between some of the Fereign Powers and China, holds that Foreign war-ships should be looked upon by the Chinese as enemies, even though war has not actually been declared, and treated with distrust. The Chinese authorities, according to our contemporary, ought to exercise some supervision over the supplies those, ships receive in Chinese waters. The quantity of provisions consumed on board must be enormous, and a Committee of the leading compradores should be formed to find out and check the exact amount supplied. For this purpose Mr. Yih Ching-chong and Mr. Chun Ken-wah are suggested as suitable persons and in case war is actually declared with any of the Foreign Powers our contemporary says that all sales of provisions to the Foreign mon-of-war in China should be stopshould be decapitated at once.

It appears from the particulars published by the Bangkok Times that Mr. Galwey was coming down the river in a native boat, after finishing up some important railway survey work in that part of the country. Upon arrival at the Chantaboon bar, owing to the wind and bigh sea running the boat capsized, and all the cocapants were precipitated into the river. Mr. Galway doubtless struggled hard to gain the shore, but no succour coming and the distance
